I BIO

Maia Oazem is a time artist born and based in São Paulo. Her practice spans cultural research, futures design and creative strategy, and takes shape as science fiction, speculative design and the transformation of organizations.

Born in 1990, she belongs to a generation that grew up logging on and off the internet until mobile arrived, and now studies, from that experience, what happens to us with post-AI. She spent fifteen years building other possible things inside Oracle, Salesforce, Google and Capgemini, while keeping her experimental flow at gira., a lab that in 2027 opens its second decade as laboratelië. She is known for using fiction to guide strategy, and for strategy born from what, until then, looked like fiction.

Her work has been featured by Veja, Época Negócios, Estadão and CNBC, and presented at Febraban Tech and Abradi. She teaches futures and applied AI at ESPM, sits on the board of the Brazilian Futures Association, is a signatory of IFE's Society Centered Design project, and was part of Google's AI ethics group. Her science fiction screenplays have been selected in Brazil, Canada, the United States, India, Italy and Japan.
